DEEDS OF INDIANS IN PRESENT WAR INSPIRING

AND WOMEN AND CHILDREN OF RED MEN ALSO SHOW HEROISM.

Washington, July 11.—The deeds of Indians who have enlisted in large numbers in the military services are hardly more inspiring than those of the women and children left behind. This is a partial account of the answer made by the people on the reservations when the "Great White Father" in Washington called to the tribes and races inhabiting this land of freedom to rise in its defense.

Reports received by Cato Sells, commissioner of Indian affairs, from about one-third of the Indian reservations, indicate a total Red Cross membership of close to 20,000, contributions in money amounting to more than $50,000 and further donations of thousands of hospital garments and knitted articles. That is not a full measure of the Red Man's generosity, however, for the reservations do not house many Indians, including the more wealthy, whose charitable activities are listed with the general population.

Resorting to methods of the white man to raise money, the Omaha tribe recently held an auction for the Red Cross which netted $2,000, including $300 for a prize goat.

Indian Students Patriotic. The boys of a school in the northwest gathered 2,000 pounds of sphagnum moss for surgical absorbent pads. Some 400 Christmas boxes were reported, which is incomplete, as nearly all of the 120 boarding schools have service flags with stars ranging in number from a few to two hundred, and the pupils of these schools are very mindful of their soldier representatives. One of the larger schools reported a Students' Friendship War Fund, with $750 on hand and twelve war savings societies. This school in four weeks bought 1,000 thrift stamps and 14 baby bonds.

On a small reservation far north, where the winters are long and severe and the Indian must struggle for the necessities of life, more than one dollar per capita for every adult was paid in cash for the Red Cross and other war relief purposes. In the Southwest, where the parched desert gives scant returns and sheep raising is the chief means of support, many of the Indians have each promised a fleece of wool for the Red Cross and the superintendent plans the experiment of spinning this wool and knitting it into socks, sweaters, etc., by the Indian women.

In a Montana district where the Indians are nearly all fullbloods they voluntarily held meetings and each one who has a growing wheat crop promised to donate one sack of wheat for war relief work. On another reservation where the Indians are very poor and have little ready money, they donated an abundance of handsome head work and other curios to be sold for the Red Cross.

In Oklahoma. One of the smaller schools in Oklahoma reported a Junior Red Cross membership of 176 members, being the total enrollment of the school.

The superintendent of one of the boarding schools for girls of the Five Civilized Tribes in Oklahoma declared the girls are deeply interested in all war work and responded readily to requests for additional garments. The very small girls knit up the scraps of yarn into refugee caps, afghan squares, etc. Also they utilize the scraps from the hospital garments, making quilt blocks. The larger scraps are used for small undershirts for the refugees. Gun wipes have been cut by the hundred.

From a northern Minnesota reservation, where it is believed the first Indian Red Cross auxiliary was started in the spring of 1917, the president of the auxiliary writes:

"The auxiliary numbers 48 and this from a community of less than a hundred adults. Some of these women have walked to the weekly meeting place across the ice from Old Agency when the temperature was 20 degrees below zero. They have sewed on hospital shirts and socks and learned to knit the various garments just as their white sisters of the cities have done."

"One evening recently an Indian and his wife, living seventeen miles away, came to the home of the treasurer and inquired about the work being done, the woman bringing her dollar for membership, saying: 'I want to do something for my country.'"

Commissioner Sells believes that the national spirit which President Wilson and other statesmen foresee as a result of the war will be splendidly exemplified by the Indian.

Bare Possibilities. Life: The war working wife of the Tommy at the front was very terse with the "nosy" lady representing some committee or other. "Oh, you needn't worry yourself," she said, "we're both doing our bit. He's bearing arms and I
